Mike Fleetham Developing Effective Learning Relationships

This session will include a brief look at the theory of the importance of good working relationships in the school setting as well as some anecdotal examples.

There will be opportunities to explore the importance of relationships with each other via some paired/group work and to consider how this exploration will enhance the interaction between TAs and the pupils they work with, as well as enhancing other relationships within the school setting.

Ben Kingston- Hughes The Importance of Play in the Classroom

“What an excellent day! Cannot wait to feedback to the school’s TAs” Judith Wood Eastland’s Junior School
“The day was great, both speakers were amazing, loved the venue too. Thank you!” Jacqueline Cooper Awwsworth Primary and Infant School

Teaching Assistant Networks

07/02/18	9.00am - 3.30pm	Edwinstowe House
07/06/18	9.00am - 12.30pm	Edwinstowe House

This course will develop a strong and supportive collaborative network of teaching assistants committed to improving their practice to support the achievement of vulnerable learners in primary, secondary and special school settings. Sessions will work in a collaborative way, with all delegates having opportunities to learn and share with each other.

There are also opportunities for delegates to feed into the content of the sessions with suggestions and ideas of topics to be focused on according to their specific needs.

SENCO Network

(Delegates must attend all three dates)

Anita Devi

Education Consultant

The focus of these briefings will be to look at practical leadership and management strategies in the delivery of SEND e.g. how to develop staff, how to deploy TAS effectively, measuring impact, managing budgets and assessment: implementing The Rochford Review. Some time will also be dedicated to sharing good practice and problem solving.

The SENCo Network will be led by Anita Devi, who has facilitated these briefings in the area over the last three years. Anita brings a national perspective to the dialogue and is able to share good practice from other areas.
